

Holiday Plea for Blood Donations

The Armed Services Blood Program Office would like to offer warm holiday wishes and remind you to give blood during this season of giving.

"We are urging all eligible donors to donate blood," appeals Commander Michael C. Libby, Director of the Armed Services Blood Program. "Many of our regular donors travel during the holidays to spend time with their loved ones, and are unable to come in to one of our blood donor centers. This can cause the military blood supply to run low," Libby says.

During this time of holiday cheer, gift giving and warm hearted family traditions, please remember that one hour of your time could mean that someone who is injured or ill will have the chance to spend time with their loved ones as well.

This holiday season, give a meaningful gift. Give blood.

To schedule an appointment, or to find out how you can support your fellow servicemembers by giving blood this holiday season, visit our web site at: www.militaryblood.dod.mil

